Historic John Quincy Tankard Now On Permanent Display

By SCOTT JACKSON

A 252-year-old silver tankard commissioned by Col. John Quincy is now on permanent display at City Hall, giving the public the chance to see the only known artifact associated with the man for whom the city of Quincy was named.

The tankard is among the items on display in the first-floor museum space in the James R. McIntyre Government Center (Old City Hall) at 1305 Hancock St. in Quincy Center. The museum space is open to the public during business hours and the city will offer tours of the building, along with the adjacent Hancock Cemetery, starting later this spring.

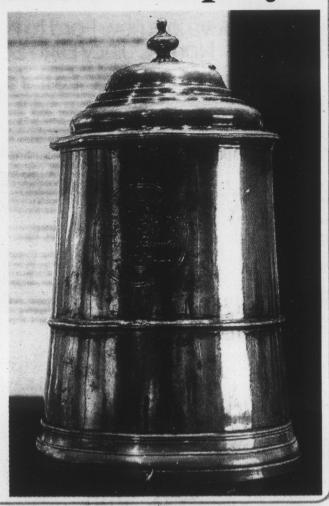

Mayor Thomas Koch announced the tankard would be on permanent display during a brief ceremony the morning of March 27. Koch presented a commendation to George Burke, the attorney who purchased the tankard during a 2001 auction and has loaned it to the city, that morning.

The tankard was made by Daniel Henchman, a notable Boston silversmith, in 1767. Col. John Quincy, a grandfather of Abigail Adams and great-grandfather of John Quincy Adams, gifted the tankard to then First Church of Christ in Braintree – now known as the United First Parish Church in Quincy Center.

The church put the tankard up for sale at a 2001 auction along with 12 other pieces of colonial silver to raise money for roof repairs. Burke, a former Quincy city councillor, state representative and district attorney,

Tribal Leaders Speak Out On Long Island

By SCOTT JACKSON

Native American leaders on Monday night said potential burial grounds on Long Island need to be investigated before the city of Boston undertakes any more construction on the island.

The City Council's environmental and public health committee met Monday to hear testimony from the Native American officials. Ward 6 Councillor William Deer Island, from 1675 to Harris, the chairman of the committee, had sought their testimony as the city of Quincy continues to fight Boston's effort to rebuild the Long Island Bridge. The bridge would connect Long Island to Moon Island, which is accessible only via Squantum.

The Native American officials on Monday said they are neither for nor against Boston's plan to rebuild the bridge and open a substanceabuse treatment center on Long Island. Rather, they said archeological sites, including burial grounds, need to be investigated before any more work begins on the island.

Native Americans were interned on Long Island and other nearby islands in Boston Harbor, including 1678 during King Philip's War. Ken White, the chairman of the Chaubunagungamaug Nipmuck tribe, said unmarked burial grounds likely remain on Long Island and called for a full archeological survey of the island to find those graves.

Ruth Jones New Public Health Commissioner

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch on Tuesday announced he has appointed Ruth Jones, the long-time director of nursing for the city's health department, Quincy's new public health commissioner.

Jones' promotion follows the departure of Drew Scheele, who had served as the public health commissioner for 17 years. Scheele is leaving Quincy to be the new public health director for the town of Scituate.

Jones, a Quincy native, has served as a nurse in the Health Department for the last 19 years, where she has

Danny Cunniff Cycling Coast-To-Coast For Charity

Riding 4,000 Miles To Raise Funds For Fighting Cancer

By SCOTT JACKSON

A Quincy resident will embark on a 70-day, 4,000-mile bike ride across 11 states this summer to benefit a charity that supports young adults, and their families, who are fighting cancer.

Danny Cunniff, age 23, will take part in this year's Ulman Foundation 4K for Cancer fundraiser. The coast-to-coast bike ride begins in June in Baltimore and is scheduled to end Aug. 10 in San Francisco. The riders will traverse 11 states

Maryland, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois,
Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado,
Utah, Nevada and California – along the way.

"Me and a group of about 20 college-age kids are taking part in a bike ride to raise money for the Ulman Foundation, which is a cancer organization based out of Baltimore, Maryland. The bike ride goes from Baltimore to San Francisco, California, over 70 days. It's over 4,000 miles of biking," Cunniff said recently.

"It's going to be quite the experience."

The Ulman Foundation provides support for adults between ages 18 and 35 who are fighting cancer, and their families, Cunniff said, such as hotel rooms near cancertreatment centers and transportation.

Cunniff said he found out about this year's bike ride when he saw an ad for it while browsing social media one day last year.

"I'm a pretty active person and I follow a lot of social media and different fitness and activity stuff online. One time I was just scrolling through and I saw an ad for bike across the country and I thought this can't be real," he recalled.

"There were a couple different steps to applying. There was first sort of just a general information application and then sort of more specifics around my personal history with cancer and stories around that. It kind of fell in to place after that."

Cunniff's grandfather is currently fighting cancer, he said.

Quincy Selected For State School Progress Review

By TOM GORMAN

Quincy Public Schools' work in increasing graduation rates and lowering the number of dropouts has caught the attention of the state Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) who will be sending a team for its first ever onsite "promising practice" review where findings could be used as a model for other districts to use to help improve their rates.

The school committee on March 20 was informed of the upcoming DESE review.

A letter to Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro from Robert Curtin, the DESE's data and accountability associate commissioner, explained that Quincy's improvement of graduation and dropout rates over the past four years prompted the review.

"The goal of the promising practice review is to learn about the district systems and practices that are likely contributing to the progress (of graduation and dropout rates) and to share this information with other districts that might be interested in developing similar systems and practices to bring about improvement," Curtin stated. "We look forward to learning about your district's work.'

The DESE noted that over the past four years, Quincy's graduation and dropout rates for students with disabilities and economically disadvantaged students has improved. Also, the DESE pointed out that Quincy's graduation rates over the same period are higher and the dropout rates lower than state averages for English learners, Hispanic/Latino students, and students that are economically disadvantaged and have disabilities. Additionally, the dropout rate for African American/Black students is lower than the state average.

The onsite review is scheduled to be conducted in a one or two day period in May or June. The state team will be comprised of independent consultants "who are experienced educators

SO CHARMING!

Archeologists found examples of the first charm bracelets in the tombs of Egypt, and Queen Victoria enjoyed both wearing and giving charms and charm bracelets. Tiffany introduced their signature gold link bracelet with art charms in 1899, and it is still popular today. Fine jewelers both sterling silver and gold options. They can even be studded with precious gems. The charms memorialize treasured moments such as anniversaries or sentimental memories like a favorite family dog. Some charms open to reveal an interior eature, while others are threedimensional, like a sports car, or flat-backed, like an engraved heart. Both soldiers and tourists mjoy bringing charm bracelets ck as mementos of the countries they have visited.

Charm bracelets adorned with little bits of memories are sure to become family heirlooms passed from generation to generation. Whenever you shop with us at Rogers Jewelry, we can promise you unmatched service and experience that you won't find on TV shopping channels or elsewhere. We'd love to guide you through the exciting adventure of purchasing beautiful charms and other fine jewelry for a special occasion or for yourself just because you deserve it. Did you know that someone's identity gets stolen every two seconds?

The AARP Fraud Watch Network provides you with tips and resources to help you spot and avoid identity theft and fraud so you can protect yourself and your family. Our watchdog alerts will keep you up to date on con artists' latest tricks. It's free of charge for everyone: AARP members, non-members, and people of all ages.

The AARP Fraud Watch Network is:

· An Educator: Get real-time alerts about the latest scams, tips on how to spot them, and the inside scoop on how con artists think so you can outsmart them before they strike.

 A Watchdog: Our nationwide scam tracking map gives you access to a network of people who've spotted scams and the opportunity to pass along your own experiences, so together we can beat con artists at their own game.

• A Resource: Get connected to a real live person trained in how to avoid fraud and advise you if you or a loved one has been scammed by calling our fraud hotline or attending a forum in your community.

• Free for Everyone: Anyone, of any age, can access our resources at no cost.

SCAM ALERT #1: IRS SCAM

Tax time is here again and so are the IRS impostors! Scammers posing as IRS agents or Treasury Department officials are continuing their deceptive ways. Know that the IRS will first contact you through the mail if you owe taxes.

If you receive a phone call or suspicious email or text from the IRS, chances are it's a scammer posing as an IRS agent. If you receive a scam call, hang up immediately and report the call to the IRS at 800-366-4484 or www.tigta.gov. If you receive an email, forward it to the IRS at phishing@ irs.gov, and then delete it.

SCAM ALERT #2: TAX IDENTITY THEFT

Scammers take full advantage of opportunities during tax filing season to make a fast buck. They commit tax identity theft by filing a phony tax return using victims' personal information to get a refund.

To protect yourself against this scam, file your return as early as possible, use a secure Internet connection if you file electronically, or mail your tax return directly from the post office.

SCAM ALERT #3: TRAVEL DEAL SCAMS

Are you looking to make a get-away as spring arrives? Know that scam artists are out there looking to take advantage of deal-seeking travelers. Be leery of "free vacation" offers -- there is often a catch, such as taxes and fees, mandatory presentations or add-ons.

Stick to trusted sites if booking travel online, and never pay a deposit or other rental fees by wire transfer. Watch out for unsolicited calls, texts or emails offering too-goodto-be-true deals. Research businesses before committing money to a trip.

SCAM ALERT #4: DIALING SCAMS

When making a phone call to an organization you know and trust, have you ever been greeted by an automatic recording that congratulates you for being selected to win a free prize or take a survey?

We know to be suspicious of unwanted calls from scammers who claim we've won something, but what about when we make the call ourselves? Unfortunately, scammers purchase series' of phone numbers that closely resemble the phone numbers of legitimate businesses. Scammers use these numbers to make people think they've reached the organization they were intending to, when in fact they've reached a scammer.

Case in point -- scammers currently own two numbers close to AARP's toll-free number. To reach AARP, dial 1-888-687-2277

Never provide your financial information to someone who claims you've qualified for a "free" product, service or prize. If you encounter this situation, hang up the phone, check the number you intended to dial, and try dialing again. Always double-check the area code and full phone number before you dial, as one slip of the finger can result in a costly experience.

Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can Report scams to local law enforcement. Contact the AARP Fraud Watch Network at www.aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork for more information on fraud prevention.

Three in Four Americans Remain Afraid Of Fully Self-Driving Vehicles, Survey Shows

A year after a number cars. of high-profile automated vehicle incidents, American attitudes toward fully self-driving cars have not rebounded.

AAA's annual automated vehicle survey found that 71 percent of people are afraid to ride in fully self-driving vehicles - indicating that overall sentiment has not yet returned to what it was prior to these incidents occurring (63 percent). AAA believes the key to helping consumers feel more comfortable with fully self-driving vehicles will be bridging the gap between the perception of automated vehicle technology and the reality of how

"Automated vehicle technology is evolving on a very public stage and, as a result, it is affecting how consumers feel about it," said Mary Maguire, director of Public and Legislative Affairs. "Having the opportunity to interact with partially or fully automated vehicle technology will help remove some of the mystery for consumers and open the door for greater accep-

Experience seems to play a key role in impacting how drivers feel about automated vehicle technology. Many cars on the road today are equipped with advanced driver assistance systems (ADAS), which are considered the building blocks for fully self-driving vehicles. AAA's recent survey revealed that regular interaction with ADAS components like lane keeping assistance, adaptive cruise control, automatic emergency braking and self-parking significantly improves consumer comfort level. On average, drivers who have one of these four ADAS technologies are about 68 percent more likely to trust who don't have them. Even more promising, these features than drivers

AAA found that Americans are receptive to the idea of automated vehicle technology in more limited applications. About half (53 percent) are comfortable with low-speed, short distance forms of transportation like people movers found at airports or theme parks while 44 percent are comfortable with fully self-driving vehicles for delivery of food or packages.

However, once the passengers become more personal - in particular, transporting their loved ones one in five remain com-

"Despite fears still running high, AAA's study also shows that Americans are willing to take baby steps toward incorporating this type of technology into their lives," Maguire said. "Hands-on exposure in more controlled, low-risk environments coupled with stronger education will play a key role in easing fears about self-driving cars."

Currently, more than half of Americans (55 percent) think that by 2029, most cars will have the ability to drive themselves, however, this timeline may be overly optimistic given the number of vehicles already on the road today. Those who are skeptical that fully selfdriving cars will arrive that soon, cite reasons such as lack of trust, not wanting to give up driving, the technology won't be ready and that road conditions will not be good enough to support the technology.

While experts agree that a fully self-driving fleet is still decades away, it is likely that more highly automated vehicles will be on the roads in the coming years. The more drivers understand both the benefits and limitations of the technology that is currently available, AAA believes the more prepared and receptive they will be for the experience of riding in a fully automated vehicle when the time comes.

To help educate consumers on the effectiveness of emerging vehicle technologies, AAA is committed to conducting ongoing, unbiased testing of automated vehicle technologies well as researching how related emerging technologies can help reduce or prevent crashes.

Previous research includes ADAS technology naming, testing of driver support systems and the annual automated vehicle survey (2016, 2017, January 2018 and April 2018).

it actually works in today's All Rights Reserved Discount Rain Barrels Available

The Quincy Department of Public Works is again partnering with the Great American Rain Barrell Co. to offer residents the opportunity to purchase rain barrels at a discount.

Regular use of a rain barrel can pay for itself in one season. One tenth of an inch of rain on a 1,000 square foot roof - about 25 minutes of moderate rainfall - will fill a 60-gallon rain barrel. New England typically receives 17 inches of rain during the growing season from May through September. This provides enough water to fill 170 rain barrels. At two cents a gallon, homeowners can expect to $204 worth of water.

Quincy chose to work with the Great American Rain Barrel Co., a local food importing company that has been repurposing shipping drums into Rain Barrels since 1988. Last year 30 percent of Massachusetts' cities and towns partnered with The Great American Rain Barrel Co., selling over 3,000 barrels.

Barrels are being offered to residents for $79 and will be available for pick up on May 7th at the Quincy DPW, 55 Sea St. Quincy, between 5 and 7 p.m.

Deadline for purchase is April 30th, midnight. To participate in the Town Water Program and find out more about the barrels, visit: www.greatamericanrainbarrel.com/community and select your town.

Wanda Jordan-Gray Helps Girl Scouts Earn Art Badge

Boston Home resident and former Girl Scout Wanda Jordan-Gray helped Quincy Girl Scout Troop 62257 obtain their art badge.

Jordan-Gray taught the girls how to paint with a variety of tools, including strings, sponges, toothbrushes, pipe cleaners, and other items.

"I wanted to show the girls that there are endless combinations of designs you can use to paint, and that it is fun to switch up the usual method of using a paint brush with other items," Jordan-Gray said. "I wanted them to feel free to express themselves and feed their passion for art."

Kerry Donohue, Girl Scout Troup Leader and The Boston Home Activities Director, arranged the class for the girls. "I wanted my troop to receive their art badge from Wanda. Wanda, like all the residents of The Boston Home, uses a wheelchair. She is a talented artist and paints in a variety of mediums, including acrylic and watercolors. I wanted the girls to realize that people with disabilities can give back. I wanted them to talk to someone in a wheelchair, to overcome any fear," Ker-

Alfredo Cauliflower - Broccoli Casserole

By MARIE

I recently found today's recipe for a cauliflower-broccoli casserole. The recipe called for a jarred Alfredo sauce but since Alfredo sauce is so easy to make I decided to use the real thing. You will find this dish to be a very nice compliment to any dinner that you are serving.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees, grease an 8 x 8 casserole dish

RECIPE:

5 cups of cauliflower florets (frozen if you like)

2 cups of broccoli florets (about 4 ounces)

1 and ½ cups Alfredo Sauce

Salt and pepper to taste 2 slices of bacon, diced and cooked

1 cup of shredded Swiss cheese or any favorite cheese

Quinoa Salad

By SUSIE

OUINOS SALAD

3 caps cooked quinoa (I like to cook in vegetable broth for extra flavor)

1 red pepper, chopped 1/3 cup scallions, chopped 1/3 cup golden raisins ¼ cup slivered almonds

1/2 cup fresh basil choppe ½ cup fresh parsley, chopped Bunch of arugula

Dressing ~

1/3 cup extra virgin olive oil Juice of 1 lemon 2 tsps. Dijon mustard 1 tsp raw honey 1 clove garlic, pressed Sea salt and pepper to taste

After quinoa is cooked, add arugula to "wilt" Once cooled, add all other ingredients and toss with dressing.

Once water comes to a boil parboil the. broccoli and cauliflower al dente for about 3 or 4 minutes, drain well and set aside.

RECIPE FOR ALFREDO SAUCE

1 stick unsalted butter 34 cup of grated parmesan cheese ½ pint of heavy cream

Melt butter in a sauce pan, stir in the parmesan cheese and then add the heavy cream; stir until the sauce thickens and all of the ingredients are well blended. Set

Arrange the broccoli on the bottom of a lightly greased 8 x 8 casserole dish and sprinkle the top with ½ cup of the shredded Swiss cheese.

Toss the cauliflower with the Alfredo sauce and spoon over the broccoli. Sprinkle with remaining shredded cheese.

Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until bubbly. Cool before serving.

Quinoa is a gluten free grain and the only one with all 8 amino acids, making it a aplete protein. It is easy to digest, and an excellent strength building food. The Incas used to make "war balls" out of quinoa to give them the strength and endurance they needed before going off to war. Legend has it that the Spanish conquerors burned down the quinoa fields and made the Incas grow wheat instead, knowing it was more of a "weakening" grain.

Arugula is a slightly bitter green with many health benefits, including detoxification, and many phytonutrients. Some say if eaten enough, coffee cravings will disappear, due to the bitter properties associated with it. It's also delicious in a salad with other mixed greens.

The night concluded with the the Christina Cutler Coots Award, presented to Woodward by Richard Cutler, Christina's brother, accompanied by her daughter Katie, honoring the Woodward Alumnae. Annually on Founders' Night, the Cutler family attends and generously gifts funds to Woodward for a wish list item or special program, in Christina's memory. This year, the funds were gratefully received by the school for the Technology Department.

New Recommendations For Aspirin Use

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES MSPH, BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

If you're a healthy older adult looking for ways to decrease your risk of heart attack and stroke, previously prescribed low-dose aspirin, may not be the answer.

Low-dose aspirin is no longer recommended as a preventative strategy for older adults who don't have a high risk or existing heart disease, according to guidelines recently announced by the American College of Cardiology and the American Heart Association. It has been a long-standing practice for doctors to recommend aspirin in low doses as a solution to ward off heart attacks, strokes and various other cardiovascular ailments.

Low-dose aspirin therapy works by blocking the inflammation-triggering enzyme cyclooxygenase and reducing the development of blood clots. Aspirin is an antiplatelet drug, which means it prevents blood from clotting as easily. Forming a blood clot is a critical function of the body, if you couldn't from clots, you'd bleed out from small wounds. However, clots that form inside your blood vessels can block flow entirely, causing a heart attack when that blood fails to get back to your heart or a stroke if the clot cuts off blood to part of your brain.

In theory, preventing platelets from doing their job means aspirin should help decrease the risk of both of these problems. This remedy, however, may intensify the risk of hemorrhagic stroke, which transpires when arteries that supply blood to the brain are ruptured. New guidelines, however, propose that aspirin should not be prescribed to most adults who are in good cardiovascular health and that the risk of internal bleeding frequently outweighs the benefits.

The American College of Cardiology and American Heart Association released the new guidelines on the heels of several studies conducted last year that revealed that daily low-dose aspirin, 100 milligrams or less, was not efficacious to older adults who do not have cardiovascular disease. Those results, published in three articles in The New England Journal of Medicine, astounded both physicians and patients who for years deemed that aspirin would prevent multitudes of heart-related illnesses.

Last year, one study published in The New England Journal of Medicine found no benefits to taking aspirin in low-risk patients. Another found that diabetics with cardiovascular disease could benefit from low-dose aspirin, but there was a risk of major bleeding. The third study found that heavier adults would need larger doses, suggesting that how much a person takes matters. Those findings applied to people with no history of dementia, physical disability, heart attacks or strokes. Keep in mind that there is still much debate among experts, and the data may not be definitive.

Researchers point out that using aspirin in younger age groups is now considered a class 2b recommendation, implying that it is not necessarily the best course of action. The authors of the new guidelines state that low-dose aspirin should not be routinely given as a preventive measure to adults 70 years and older or to any adult who has an increased risk of bleeding.

Dr. Erin Michos, the associate director of preventive cardiology at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine and one of the authors, points out that the guidelines are for people with no clinical signs of heart disease or stroke. Doctors may still prescribe aspirin for some older patients with increased risk for heart diseases, including those who have difficulty managing their blood sugar or lowering their cholesterol, provided there is no increased risk for internal bleeding. She highlighted the fact that people who have had heart attacks or have stents should continue to still take aspirin.

It is important to note that patients should consult their primary care doctor or cardiovascular physician before initiating or discontinuing the taking of aspirin. Patients should work closely with their healthcare providers to establish their risk for bleeding. That threat rises as one ages or develops kidney disease, heart disease, diabetes and high blood pressure. A history of ulcers or bleeding, particularly in the gastrointestinal tract, or anemia is also a considered a significant risk factor.

Certain medications, such as nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs, steroids, direct oral anticoagulants and warfarin (Coumadin), a blood thinner, can also increase the chance of bleeding. Other risk factors for bleeding include gender, and co-morbidities such as cancer, alcoholism, gene polymorphism, and previous stroke.

As an alternative to daily low-dose aspirin, these new guidelines recommended numerous behavioral changes to ensure a healthy heart. These include sustaining a healthy weight, not smoking, participating in moderate activity for at least 150 minutes a week and a diet that includes vegetables, fruits, nuts, whole grains and fish.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

Indoor Mini-Golf, Wine & Beer Tasting To Benefit Crane Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library Foundation is hoping everyone will have "a hole lot of fun" at the Thomas Crane Mini-Golf Classic and Wine & Beer Tasting on Saturday, April 27. The event will be held at the Main Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy from 6-10 p.m.

The fun-filled night will feature indoor minigolf among the stacks. The course setup is provided by Library Mini Golf, LLC and will feature 18 holes throughout the library. Local businesses are sponsoring - and decorating - holes.

In addition to mini-golf, there will be a wine & beer tasting, food, drinks, live music and a DJ. JP Fuji Group is providing food and the wine & beer tasting is being organized by Wollaston Wine and Spirits.

"We are so excited for this event," said Pamela Linskey, president of the Foundation. "It promises to be a fun night out to support our wonderful library system and we are just so thankful to our sponsors for their continued support."

The first and last holes are sponsored by Century 21 Annex Realty and City of Boston Credit Union. Other sponsors include: Debbie Gentile of Keller Williams Real Estate - Signature Properties, LINSKEY LAW, LLC, Quincy Credit Union, Janice Richmond of Success Real Estate, Mike Molisse of Molisse Realty Group, LLC, NorthEast Community Bank, Charles Schwab and Company, and L&J Title Services.

There are still a few holes left to sponsor. If interested, email the Foundation at board@tcplf.org or call Pamela Linskey at 617-471-6161.

Check out the Foundation's website, tcplf.org, for more event details.

Tickets to the event are $50 and cover food, the wine & beer tasting, two additional drinks and a round of mini-golf. Tickets can be purchased by mailing a check made payable to the Thomas Crane Public Library Foundation, Attn: Wayne Miller, Treasurer to 40 Washington St., Quincy, MA 02169 or can be purchased online through Eventbrite or Mightycause.

Since its incorporation as a 501(c)(3) non-profit in 1995, the Thomas Crane Public Library Foundation has raised private funding to support excellence and innovation in the facilities, services and programs of the Thomas Crane Public

The Foundation initiates major fundraising efforts for projects above and beyond what city budgets can provide while reinforcing the need for continued and increased support for the Library. Last year, the Foundation raised funds to purchase new tables, chairs and shelving for all ages at the North Quincy Branch.

Quincy Students Participate At Youth In Government Conference

Matt Brandi and Colman Gillis of Quincy, seniors at Boston College High School, were two of the 25 B.C. High students who participated at the annual YMCA Youth in Government Conference from March 20 to 22 at the Massachusetts State House on Beacon Hill.

The young men were delighted that they were able to meet B.C. High graduate 4th Plymouth Representative Patrick Kearney '13 of

The B.C. High students were singled out for leadership roles at the conference: Brandi served as governor, Ryan Golemme '19 of Norwell as lt. governor, and Gillis as head lobbyist. Woodward School Celebrates Founders, Academic Excellence

The Woodward School community gathered for its annual Founders' Night March 21st at the school in Quincy, to celebrate the vision and generosity of the School's Founders, Dr. Ebenezer and Mary Greenleaf Woodward.

The night showcased the academic achievements of Woodward students, including the National Honor Society, awards for the Founders' History Paper Competition, and Rhetorical Performances and Awards.

Students inducted into the National Honor Society, in recognition of their scholarship leadership, character and service, are:

Class of 2019: Keanny Correia, Lily Fitzgerald, Kamille Garrick, Kimberly Herlihy, Ashley Jean-Louis, Cayla Jean-Louis, Grace Neville, Ola Okeibunor, Hailey Peckham, Nia Twit-

Class of 2020: Emma Caulfield, Dana Galloway, and Grace O'Sullivan, Ashley Vazzana.

Class of 2020: Emma Caulfield, Carolyn Deal, and Anastasia Roth.

Also recognized were the finalists and winner of the Founders' History Paper Competition and Scholarship Prize. The Paper is a Woodward junior year requirement, to write an original thesis paper on a topic from U.S. history. Independent readers, college professors and historians from outside of the school, read and score the five finalists' papers, whose authors are identified only by number.

The grand prize winner is the recipient of the Susan M. Hayes History Award, a tuition scholarship established in memory of former Woodward history teacher, Dean of Students, and well known Quincy resident, Susan Martin Hayes.

This year's grand prize and scholarship winner is Grace O'Sullivan of Weymouth for her paper, "American Racism: Japanese-American Internment." The other finalists were Ashley Vazzana, Emma Caulfield, Carolyn Deal, and Jody Serani.

All Woodward students participate in reciting memorized poems, historical speeches, and Latin passages. Grade 8 declamations were performed by Esi Eshun, reciting "Phenomenal Woman" by Maya Angelou. Jacqueline Andrade recited "Who Are You, Really?" by Madison Kuhn. Alex Keady recited "Stopping by the Woods" by Robert Frost, and Gwen Bates recited "The Fish" by Elizabeth Bishop.

The Sophomore Rhetoric Recitations were:

Yuka Shimizu delivering "To Live" by Shuntaro Tanigawa; Jordan Cedrone recited Atticus Finch's speech from To Kill A Mockingbird by Harper Lee; Nia Holloman recited Franklin Delano Roosevelt's Inaugural Address on March 4, 1933; Flori Bouma '20 recited the Gettysburg Address; Jade Coiscou recited "Story" by Sonja Sanchez; Swetha Vissapragada recited Women's Suffrage Speech, 1869 by Elizabeth Cady Stanton; Yongshi Xu recited The Silent Witness, and Megan Burns recited Our National Language by Thomas Osborne Davis.

The Latin Recitations: Jordan Cedrone '21 performed a speech by Aeneas to his weary men; Nia Holloman '21 a speech by Queen Dido; Grace O'Sullivan '20 recited Cicero's first oration against Catiline; Jody Serani and Dana Galloway '20 each spoke a poem from Catullus, and Ashley Vazzana '20 recited an ode from Horace to Leuconoe.

The night concluded with the the Christina Cutler Coots Award, presented to Woodward by Richard Cutler, Christina's brother, accompanied by her daughter Katie, honoring the Woodward Alumnae. Annually on Founders' Night, the Cutler family attends and generously gifts funds to Woodward for a wish list item or special program, in Christina's memory. This year, the funds were gratefully received by the school for the Technology Department.

New Recommendations For Aspirin Use

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES MSPH, BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

If you're a healthy older adult looking for ways to decrease your risk of heart attack and stroke, previously prescribed low-dose aspirin, may not be the answer.

Low-dose aspirin is no longer recommended as a preventative strategy for older adults who don't have a high risk or existing heart disease, according to guidelines recently announced by the American College of Cardiology and the American Heart Association. It has been a long-standing practice for doctors to recommend aspirin in low doses as a solution to ward off heart attacks, strokes and various other cardiovascular and reducing the development of blood clots. Aspirin is an antiplatelet drug, which means it prevents blood from clotting as easily. Forming a blood clot is a critical function of the body, if you couldn't from clots, you'd bleed out from small wounds. However, clots that form inside your blood vessels can block flow entirely, causing a heart attack when that blood fails to get back to your heart or a stroke if the clot cuts off blood to part of your brain.

Low-dose aspirin therapy works by blocking the inflammation-triggering cyclooxygenase

In theory, preventing platelets from doing their job means aspirin should help decrease the risk of both of these problems. This remedy, however, may intensify the risk of hemorrhagic stroke, which transpires when arteries that supply blood to the brain are ruptured. New guidelines, however, propose that aspirin should not be prescribed to most adults who are in good cardiovascular health and that the risk of internal bleeding frequently outweighs the benefits.

The American College of Cardiology and American Heart Association released the new guidelines on the heels of several studies conducted last year that revealed that daily low-dose aspirin, 100 milligrams or less, was not efficacious to older adults who do not have cardiovascular disease. Those results, published in three articles in The New England Journal of Medicine, astounded both physicians and patients who for years deemed that aspirin would prevent multitudes of heart-related illnesses.

Last year, one study published in The New England Journal of Medicine found no benefits to taking aspirin in low-risk patients. Another found that diabetics with cardiovascular disease could benefit from low-dose aspirin, but there was a risk of major bleeding. The third study found that heavier adults would need larger doses, suggesting that how much a person takes matters. Those findings applied to people with no history of dementia, physical disability, heart attacks or strokes. Keep in mind that there is still much debate among experts, and the data may not be definitive.

Researchers point out that using aspirin in younger age groups is now considered a class 2b recommendation, implying that it is not necessarily the best course of action. The authors of the new guidelines state that low-dose aspirin should not be routinely given as a preventive measure to adults 70 years and older or to any adult who has an increased risk of bleeding.

and shelving for all ages at the North Quincy Branch.

Dr. Erin Michos, the associate director of preventive cardiology at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine and one of the authors, points out that the guidelines are for people with no clinical signs of heart disease or stroke. Doctors may still prescribe aspirin for some older patients with increased risk for heart diseases, including those who have difficulty managing their blood sugar or lowering their cholesterol, provided there is no increased risk for internal bleeding. She highlighted the fact that people who have had heart attacks or have stents should continue to still take aspirin.

It is important to note that patients should consult their primary care doctor or cardiovascular physician before initiating or discontinuing the taking of aspirin. Patients should work closely with their healthcare providers to establish their risk for bleeding. That threat rises as one ages or develops kidney disease, heart disease, diabetes and high blood pressure. A history of ulcers or bleeding, particularly in the gastrointestinal tract, or anemia is also a considered

medications. Certain such as nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs, steroids, direct oral anticoagulants and warfarin (Coumadin), a blood thinner, can also increase the chance of bleeding. Other risk factors for bleeding include gender, and co-morbidities such as cancer, alcoholism, gene polymorphism, and previous stroke.

As an alternative to daily low-dose aspirin, these new guidelines recommended numerous behavioral changes to ensure a healthy heart. These include sustaining a healthy weight, not smoking, participating in moderate activity for at least 150 minutes a week and a diet that includes vegetables, fruits, nuts, whole grains and fish.

Indoor Mini-Golf, Wine & Beer Tasting To Benefit Crane Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library Foundation is hoping everyone will have "a hole lot of fun" at the Thomas Crane Mini-Golf Classic and Wine & Beer Tasting on Saturday, April 27. The event will be held at the Main Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy from 6-10 p.m.

The fun-filled night will feature indoor minigolf among the stacks. The course setup is provided by Library Mini Golf, LLC and will feature 18 holes throughout the library. Local businesses are sponsoring – and decorating – holes.

In addition to mini-golf, there will be a wine & beer tasting, food, drinks, live music and a DJ. JP Fuji Group is providing food and the wine & beer tasting is being organized by Wollaston Wine and Spirits.

"We are so excited for this event," said Pamela Linskey, president of the Foundation. "It promises to be a fun night out to support our wonderful library system and we are just so thankful to our sponsors for their continued support."

The first and last holes are sponsored by Century 21 Annex Realty and City of Boston Credit Union. Other sponsors include: Debbie Gentile of Keller Williams Real Estate - Signature Properties, LINSKEY LAW, LLC, Quincy Credit Union, Janice Richmond of Success Real Estate, Mike Molisse of Molisse Realty Group, LLC, NorthEast Community Bank, Charles Schwab and Company, and L&J Title Services.

There are still a few holes left to sponsor. If interested, email the Foundation at board@tcplf.org or call Pamela Linskey at 617-471-6161.

Check out the Foundation's website, tcplf.org, for more event details.

At Nickerson Legion Post

Quincy's U.S. A-Team will be hosting its 2019 fundraiser party at The Nickerson Post, 1 Moon Island Road in Squantum on Friday, April 12th from 6-10

There will be music, dancing and Barbeque by Larry J. Film maker Valerie Lighthart will also be debuting her video documentary of the 2018 World Championship race in Poland.

Attendees will have the opportunity to have their picture taken with the team's race boats and last year's bronze medal. All proceeds will go towards the shipping of the team's equipment to Europe for the 2019 World Hydroplane Championship.

This year's race will be held in Mora, Sweden on July 25-28. The Americans will field two entries this year; Cowboy Matt Allen from Hurst, Texas, will make his international racing debut in the #21 "Texas Tiger." This boat was formerly the #8 "Iron Head" which was raced internationally with much success by Mike Akerstrom from

The other American defending bronze medalist Billy Allen from Quincy, will once again be piloting the #16 "RUSH." The U.S. A-Team will be the only U.S. representation at this year's World Champion-

Suggested donation is $20 at the door. For those unable to make it to the party but would still like to support the team, donations can be sent to: U.S. A-Team, 143 Parke Ave., Quincy, MA 02171.

The Quincy-based U.S. A-Team is the only team committed to representing the United States at the UIM World Championship events in Europe. These events feature drivers from over 20 different countries and are recognized by the International Olympic Committee (IOC). Olympic Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are awarded to the top 3 podium finishers, so come out and show your support for a local team with international accolades.

Spring Specials At Crane Library Bookstore

The clocks have been moved ahead, the snow has melted, and as Rodgers and Hart wrote, Spring Is Here! It's time to move on with those plans to redecorate the bedroom, start that quilt, try out that new recipe or begin building that work bench in the basement.

During the months of April and May the Crane Library Bookstore will offer a buy-one-get-one-free on all books on home and garden, such as cooking, crafts, interior design, food and wine, etc. Most hard-cover books sell for $2 and paper backs for $1.

Our large selection includes over-sized books with extensive and colorful illustrations. All are in gently-used condition and just waiting to be put to good use as you spring forward with your home design or repair ideas!

The shop, which has extended through month's-end its offer of buy-one-get-onefree of $2 DVDs, is open on Thursday evenings from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. and on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., with direct entrance on Spear Street in the rear of the Thomas Crane Public

Sponsored and managed by volunteers of The Friends of the Crane Library, net proceeds of the intimate bookstore are used to fund and support the library's many programs offered to the Quincy community.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty - Increasing Your Social Security Benefit Amount

By RUSSELL GLOOR AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I turned 67 in September 2018. My benefit estimate is $1,478 a month if I claim benefits now. I work and will continue working as long as I can. My 35-year earnings period includes about 10 years of zeros when I was married (twice for about 5 years each). If I claim benefits now will my monthly amount go up if I continue to work? I read that the SSA recalculates each year and uses your high years. I make about $57k a year now and hopefully will continue to do so. Does the SSA replace one of the zero years with the years I work after claiming benefits and raise my monthly benefit accordingly and how much? I truly appreciate your help with this as I would like to decide this month. I have read on SSA that if I don't claim it will go up 8% but I also have read I could be drawing benefits and working too, and this would be a better financial situation. Signed: Working Senior

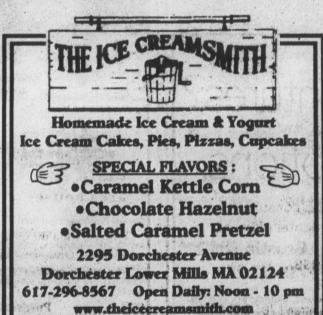

Dear Working Senior: Yes, if you have 10 years of zeros in your 35-year earnings history, your more recent earnings each year will replace one of those zero years, if the earnings are what Social Security considers "substantial" (which your $57,000 income would be). Social Security gets your earnings information from the IRS as soon as your W-2 is available each year and makes any benefit adjustment necessary at that time (if you're self-employed the adjustment is made after you file your income taxes). When Social Security receives your income information each year, they will recompute your "average indexed monthly earnings" (AIME) with your revised 35-year earnings history (including one less zero year), adjust your "primary insurance amount" (or "PIA"), and increase your benefit accordingly. I can't tell you how much of an increase it would be because I don't have access to your lifetime earnings records, but you shouldn't expect it to be a major increase each year. After all, your new earnings will only represent 1/35th of your AIME, so the increase to your benefit won't be big. But if you continue to work with significant earnings your benefit will continue to increase over time and each increase you get will last for the rest of your life.

You are correct that for each year you delay claiming benefits beyond your full retirement age of 66, you'll earn delayed retirement credits (DRCs) of 8%, up until you are 70 when your benefit would be 32% higher than at your full retirement age. You're earning those DRCs now at a rate of 2/3rds of 1% each month after your FRA and will continue to earn them until you claim (but not after age 70). However, if you are trying to compare the increase you will get by claiming benefits and continuing to work, versus the 8% per year increase you will get by delaying claim of your SS, please be aware that the 8% annual increase will be much more than any increase you'll get from working and replacing a zero year. And the fact is, if you continue to delay and also continue to work, you'll still be improving your eventual benefit from your earnings and you'll still earn those delayed retirement credits until you are 70. In other words, you can do both.

ADAMS NATIONAL HISTORICAL PARK that includes the birthplaces of Second U.S. President John Adams (left) and his son, Sixth U.S. President John Quincy Adams (right) on Franklin Street, will open May 18 - a month later than usual - due in part to the partial government shutdown that ended in January. The park's visitor center, located at 1250 Hancock St., is open to the public while the birthplaces along with the Old House at Peacefield on Adams Street, are closed.

Adams Houses Opening Delayed Until May 18th

By SCOTT JACKSON

The historic homes that comprise the Adams National Historical Park in Quincy will not open until May this year, one month later than they normally would open for the tourist season.

The historic homes - the Old House at Peacefield on Adams Street and the birthplaces of John and John Quincy Adams on Franklin Street + will open to the public on May 18, according to the National Park Service. Those homes typically open in April.

Kelly Cobble, the park's acting superintendent, said the delay was partially because of the 35-day partial shutdown of the federal government that ended in down," she said. "It's not all because of the shutdown, but the shutdown gave us the impetus for doing it."

The National Park Service, Cobble explained, can only hire seasonal rangers for a six-month period per a long-standing regulation. Because of that rule, Cobble said the Adams National Historical Park planned to open from May 1 to Oct. 30 this year, but delays caused by the shutdown pushed that window back two weeks.

Cobble noted most tourists come to the park during the summer season when school is out of session.

"The high concentration of our seasons begins in June through the summer when most families are on vacation," she said.

"Things were delayed a The shutdown, she addlittle because of the shut- ed, did not cause any concerns with items such as maintenance and renovations.

"We were very lucky not to have a lot of snow during the shutdown," Cobble said.

The park's visitor center, located at 1250 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, is open to the public while the homes are closed. The visitor center will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday until the his-. toric homes open. Between May 18 and the end of the season on Nov. 10, the visitor center will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week. All tours begin at the visitor center.

The United First Parish Church, located at 1306 Hancock St., will open for the season in April as is. customary, said Bob Damon, the director of the church's visitation program. The church is known as the Church of the Presidents as it is the final resting place of John and John Quincy

Adams; it is the only building in which two American presidents are buried. Damon said the church will begin offering tours of the Adams crypt on April 13. Tours are offered between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from noon to 4 p.m. on Sundays.

The church welcomed 10,000 visitors last year, Damon said. Those visitors hailed all 50 U.S. states and 30 countries.

This will be the first full tourist season at the United First Parish Church since the completion of the Hancock-Adams Common, which connects the church with City Hall. Damon said he was uncertain how the opening of the new public space, plus the delayed opening of the Adams National Historical Park, would impact visits to the church. He noted the church saw an uptick in visits once the Hancock-Adams Common opened last September.

"We certainly saw a bump in attendance once the green opened last year," Damon said. "We hope it has a positive impact. It's such a gorgeous space."

Zoning Board Nixes 2 Projects

By SCOTT JACKSON

A homeowner looking to build a two-family home in Squantum withdrew his proposal with the Zoning Board of Appeals set to reject it, while the board denied a South Quincy homeowner's request to convert a singlefamily home to a two-family building.

The board reviewed both projects during its meeting on March 26.

John and Nicole Sacco had proposed tearing down the single-family house at 23 Essex St. in Squantum and replacing it with a twofamily home. The property includes 9,000 square feet of land in a Residence A zoning district, according to the city assessors online database.

McCauley Signing Copies Of New Book April 20

Former Quincy Mayor Francis X. McCauley will hold a book signing for his newly published autobiography Saturday, April 20 at 10 a.m. at the Quincy Historical Society, located at 8 Adams St. in Quincy Center.

Copies of "FRANK: From Bootlegger to Bank President and Beyond" will be available for purchase at the event for $20 (sales tax included). Those who have previously purchased a copy of the book are welcome to bring it to the event and have it signed.

In his autobiography, Mc-Cauley details his improbable rise from so-so student and aimless clam digger to bank president and mayor of Quincy. Along the way, the book offers an illuminating look at life in Quincy from the 1920s through the early 21st century.

"The review will culminate in a brief written/ visual summary describing key takeaways that might be useful for other districts to learn," Curtin stated. "This will be disseminated by the DESE to other districts and to DESE staff."

Curtin added that the team would also note any recommendations for further improvement they may come up with for Quincy.

"Our hope is that the review will also provide your district with an opportunity for reflection and learning," Curtin stated.

Woman Summonsed For Filing False Police Report

By SCOTT JACKSON

A 49-year-old woman involved in a robbery reported to the Quincy Police Deartment last month will be summonsed to Quincy District Court for filing a false police report.

The woman, who said she was the victim of the reported robbery, confessed to making a false police report during a follow-up interview with a detective, police said Monday. Detectives also reviewed surveillance footage in the area of the reported crime scene as part of the investigation. Shortly after 11 a.m. on March 25, officers responded to a report that a woman had been assaulted on Russell Park in Quincy Center. Officers spoke to the 49-year-old woman - who had visible cuts - when they arrived on scene.

The woman told police she had been walking on the dirt path behind the tennis courts on Russell Park when the suspect approached her from behind, threw her to the ground and stole money from her purse. The suspect then fled towards Faxon Field, leaving the purse behind. The woman had described the suspect as a black male in his early 20s.

Federal Appeals Court Upholds Corliss Conviction

By SCOTT JACKSON

A federal appeals court has upheld a former Quincy police lieutenant's conviction on mail fraud and embezzlement charges.

A federal jury in June 2017 found Thomas Corliss guilty on ten counts of mail fraud and one count of embezzlement from an organization receiving federalprogram benefits. Corliss had been accused of submitting fraudulent overtime and detail timesheets, which double counted the time he worked, during a six-month period in 2015.

A three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit upheld the conviction in a decision issued March 27.

In their appeal, Corliss's attorneys argued the trial court judge erred by preventing their client's trial counsel from asking Quincy Police Capt. John Dougan if any other police officers faced disciplinary action for violations like those Corliss committed. The appeals court, however, said Corliss was not harmed by the trial judge's decision to block that line of questioning, because the argument had been addressed by other testimony during the trial.

"So, limiting cross examination did not stop the jury from hearing Corliss's argument and the supporting evidence," the appeals court stated. Corliss's attorneys also said Dougan was improperly allowed to testify about the collective bargaining agreement between the city and its police officer. The appeals court said Corliss's trial counsel objected to that line of questioning but did so without giving a specific reason for the objection. Further, the appeals court noted Corliss's attorney had questioned Dougan about the collective bargaining agreement.

"This line of questioning, if it did not waive Corliss's claim, opened the door to follow-up questions on re-direct on related provisions," the panel wrote. "Therefore, no error oc-

Further, Corliss's attorneys said prosecutors committed misconduct by showing pictures of government witnesses during closing arguments, even though the pictures had not been admitted into evidence. The trial judge ordered the prosecutor to take the pictures down and told the jury to disregard the images, but the pictures appeared later on in the same slideshow, the appellate panel said.

The appeals court, however, said the display of those pictures does not warrant a new trial. The panel noted the judge instructed the jury to disregard the pictures on three separate occasions, and said it was unlikely the pictures affected the outcome of the case.

"Given the government's powerful evidence of guilt, conviction would hardly have been avoided absent the witnesses' pictures," the court said.

Corliss in September 2017 was sentenced to one year and a day in federal prison, followed by a year of supervised release. He was also ordered to pay $8,200 in restitution to the city.

Corliss retired from the Quincy Police Department shortly after his conviction and later had his pension re-

$243,000.00 Your Dream Of Owning A Vacation Home May Not Be As Far Away As You Think

By JULIANN GALLIGAN

As you go about your daily life around the city, certain things you may begin to notice, such as the temperature, which is now above freezing and we may have a day or two when you might not need a jacket, the snow has melted, the sun isn't setting until after dinnetime, the Clam Box is open as well as various ice cream shops, activity along Wollaston beach is picking up, the bikers, runners and motorcycles have come out from hibernation.

What catches my eye is the popping up of "For Sale" signs gracing the front lawns of homes as if they were sprouting up from the soil like the blossoming of the first flowers of spring and on weekends, neighborhood street corners are decorated with "Open House" signs. Whenever you see such signs, the first thought is usually, "I wonder what that's going for?'

"Well if that house is going for 'that' then my house must be worth "this." Have you ever thought to yourself 'I really like that house for sale but in order to buy that house, I would have to sell my house and that just seems like way too much work.' The thought soon drifts away and you're onto something else.

We hear that there's information out there for first time homebuyers and programs and assistance for first time homebuyers but what about the second time home buyers or the second home home buyers? I think most of us have in our minds that second homes are only for the wealthy or the retired. A trip down to Florida this past month enlightened me that is not always the case. If it's something you've thought about here are a few things you should know.

Credit score requirements for a second home are a bit higher for a primary residence. Debt to income requirements depends on the amount of your down payment and credit score. The three main ways to purchase a second home or vacation property are: a cash purchase, refinance on your primary home; a HELOC (home equity line of credit) or a conventional loan on the second home. Buying a second home or vacation home does have its pros as well as cons. Second homes potentially yield a return while providing a vacation spot which you have full control over. With the percentage of home prices rising over the past few years, your vacation home may just pay for itself! No more worrying about reservation hassles or things not turning out the way you like. It's yours, you can decorate and put any furniture you want, etc.

On the other hand, you must know the costs and the time that will be involved in maintaining two properties. You may also try thinking about renting out your vacation home to offset some of the costs. Either way it's a big commitment. But a commitment that may just be worth it, if you can af-

The best of both worlds the second home can provide is a lifetime full of memories and a profit as it builds equity during your ownership.

So if you're sick of vacationing in hotels or rentals year after year, join the half million people that buy second homes every year!

Mike Flavin Sells Long Time Funeral Home to Local Developer

Michael Flavin and Angela Bergin both of Quincy's Flavin and Flavin Real Estate confirmed they brokered the long time Quincy Funeral Home known as Hamel, Wickens and Troupe located at 26 Adams Street to a local Real Estate Developer. Flavin said shortly after the funeral home was sold, Bergin along with himself approached the building Owner next door and packaged that parcel to the same Developer. According to City records the funeral home sold for $2.5 Million and the adjacent office building known as 24 Adams Street sold for $1,2 Million. The buyer, Hancock Place LLC known as the Marion Group LLC list Derek Fitzgerald as Manager. Fitzgerald is currently constructing a multi town home project on Garfield Street in Quincy and recently completed a multi Town home project on Mill Street. Quincy is in the middle of a complete overhaul of its downtown area. "Quincy has what everyone wants, miles of shore line, commuters dream with four MBTA stations, located just a few miles from Boston along with a very well respected school system makes Quincy a desirable place to live" Flavin Said. When asked to Flavin what is expected to happen on the two new purchases by Fitzgerald he said "We will have to wait and see, but it's certainly exciting." Hancock-Adams Common Wins Planning Excellence Award

Quincy's new HancockAdams Common, designed by landscape architects Halvorson Design with project manager Woodard & Curran, was honored with the 2018 Planning Project
Award by the American
Planning Association (APA)
Massachusetts chapter, the office of Mayor Thomas
Koch announces.

The APA MA Awards program recognizes outstanding projects, people and organizations, which have made "a significant contribution to the field of planning."

This long-awaited open space—the culmination of a series of transformative public projects spanning the past decade—sets the stage for future development and investment in downtown Quincy, city officials said.

A press release issued by the mayor's office said:

"Years of planning by the Mayor's Office, Quincy Planning Department and the design team resulted in a visionary plan to reroute traffic around the city center in order to create an attractive and welcoming new civic common featuring a tree-lined pedestrian promenade, green space, and granite plaza, which links together three of downtown Quincy's most iconic historical landmarks: Old City Hall, Hancock Cemetery, and the United First Parish Church.

"Serving as the new front yard' for downtown

Quincy, Hancock-Adams Common creates a seamless pedestrian experience, directly connecting the Quincy Center MBTA station with historic landmarks, public facilities, local businesses, and multifamily residential developments," the release said.

The press release also stated:

tated:
"A vibrant destination in its own right, the three-acre Common offers flexibility for a range of programming opportunities and features two fountains, interpretive design elements and sculptures, ornamental plantings, large lawn areas and hard-scape plaza spaces suitable for hosting public events. The Common's monumental 2,500-square-foot "tidal" fountain serves as a major draw, with its granite surface that recalls the city's 26 miles of coastal shore-line and more than 200 jets, which are able to spray recirculating water up to 12' in the air.

"In addition to honoring the past, Hancock-Adams Common firmly plants itself in the present day and future of the city. This multi-phased, multi-effort park project and associated streetscape significantly improves circulation, incorporating bike lanes, raised crosswalks with high-intensity activated crosswalk beacons, elevated tree planters, and other components demonstrating complete streets concepts."

Mayor Thomas Koch said he sees Hancock-Adams Common as an integral step in transforming downtown Quincy from a nine-tofive shopping district into a thriving 24/7 neighborhood.
By providing a welcoming space for public engagement, cultural interpretation, and celebration and a "postcard setting for tourists," Hancock Adams Common puts the city well on its way to creating "a new Quincy."

Zoning Board Nixes 2 Projects

er people who are going to ask for the same thing," said Martin Aikens, the board's chairman. "It's a beautiful piece of property and there should be a beautiful single-family home built on that property...what made you even think of coming up with a two-family home?"

Treneer said the proposal was made to accommodate Sacco's mother.

"Like I said, it's out of necessity – the fact that he's looking to house his mother as well," Treneer said.

Aikens, in response, said was concerned about what could happen to the property down the road.

"It's good now. It's good for 10 years, 15, 20 years," he said. "In 25 years, it's no good because people add on."

Board member Brian Radell shared the same sentiment.

"The one thing this board has been absolutely consistent on in my time is protecting Residence A," he said. "We get some backlash here that we never say no, but we're very protective of communities. This is Residence A and I think you're going to continue to see us saying no to overdevelopment of Residence A. It's built for single-family homes."

With the board poised to deny the application, Sacco withdrew. He told the board he would instead build a new single-family home on site.

Ward 6 Councillor William Harris said residents had shared the same concerns about putting a two-family home in a Residence A district.

"Throughout the last two weeks, I got a lot of correspondence and it was basically what the board has said," Harris stated.

Thoma Laci sought permission to add an addition onto his home at 150 Centre St. in South Quincy, which would convert the building into a two-family home. The home is on a 6,852-square-foot lot zoned Residence B.

Laci said the home now on site includes four bedrooms. He planned to raze the existing garage in the rear of his property to make room for a new garage and the additional dwelling unit, which would include two bedrooms. He said the plan had room for four parking spaces, plus one space in the new garage.

Three abutters said they were opposed to Laci's request.

Marilyn Chase, a Granite Street resident, said Laci's lot was too small for a twofamily home.

"We strongly oppose this building as Mr. Laci's lot size is too small for a two-family structure," she said. "It will greatly reduce my privacy. The noise of more cars, more people, coming and going day and night will be very disturbing to me and my family."

Louis Malvesti, in a letter to the board, said the proposal would change the dynamics of the neighborhood.

"I feel the lot size of Mr. Laci's property is too small," said Malvesti, who lives next door on Centre Street. "This has always been a very quiet neighborhood. I feel making this home a two-family will change the dynamics of the neighborhood that I have known and loved for so many years."

Board members said they agreed with the neighbors' concerns and then voted to deny the request.

"It's just going to be a nuisance to the neighborhood," Aikens said.

"I think it's going to be a problem with parking for the abutters," added board member Russell Chin.

In other business on March 26, the board:

Approved Kevin Gorham's request for a special permit, variance and finding to make alterations to the existing non-conforming structure at 77 Willard St., build a garage there and allow mixed-use of the structure. Gorham plans to rent out the single-family home on site while using part of the building as a 400-square foot office for his business. Two neighbors supported the plan.

Approved Andrew Falkenstein's request for a variance to rebuild the existing barn at 20 Bay View Ave. The new barn will have the same footprint as the existing barn but will be located further away from an abutting property. As a condition of the board's decision, no plumbing or gas work will be allowed inside the new barn to prevent it from being used as a dwelling unit.

T.P.A.L. Finalist For Transportation Innovation Award

A new traffic signal system installed at intersections throughout the city is a finalist for a national transportation innovation award, the mayor's office announces.

mayor's office announces.

Quincy's Adaptive Signalization project was nominated in the Transportation—Connected & Autonomous Vehicles, Public Transit, Ride-Hailing/Ride-Sharing' Category for IDC's 2019 Smart Cities North America Awards.

According to a press release issued by the city, "Quincy's Traffic, Parking, Alarm & Lighting Department revolutionized its traffic control infrastructure and installed an adaptive signalization platform at more than two dozen intersections. The technology utilizes cutting edge video and radar detection to feed information into an algorithm-based traffic management platform, giving each intersection the ability to adapt to current traffic volumes in real-time.

"Quincy also installed a state-of-the-art emergency preemption platform that utilizes connected and autonomous vehicle technology to provide emergency vehicles with a seamless, radio and cellular based preemption system, which allows police and fire personnel to safely travel to and from emergency calls," the statement read.

Quincy's project is up against a connected bus project in Houston, TX and an emergency preemption project in San Jose, CA. The public can go online and cast a vote for a winner at https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/IDCSCNA-2019Finalists

Quincy Chamber Of Commerce Inducts Dunkin' As Inaugural Member Of Business Hall Of Fame

The Quincy Chamber of Commerce inducted Dunkin', the iconic, homegrown baked goods and coffee brand, as the inaugural member of its newly created Business Hall of Fame before 450 guests at its Annual Meeting and Business Showcase March 26th at Granite Links.

Dunkin' has a rich history dating back to 1948 when William Rosenberg opened his first restaurant, Open Kettle, and then subsequently renamed as Dunkin' Donuts in 1950. The first restaurant located on the Southern Artery in Quincy, Massachusetts, was created with the goal to "make the freshest, most delicious coffee and donuts."

Dunkin' is now one of the leading food and beverage companies in the world, with over 12,800 locations in 44 countries. The Chamber honor reflects the hardwork and success, not only of Bill Rosenberg, one of the

IT'S SPRING AGAIN and you may come across a baby bird. It is best to put chicks back into the nest, or high in a shrub or tree close to the nest as possible. Advice If You Find A Baby Bird

By KAREN WALKER

I found a baby bird!

It's that time of year, when we often hear some one ask, "I've found a baby bird, what should I do?"

More often than not, a baby bird found on the ground is just a fledgling, ready to learn to fly. Fledglings are typically fully feathered, with a short tail and wings. They are able to walk, hop and flap, and they may attempt short flights, to the nest as possible. but are still being cared for by the parents. Mom knows where he is, and she will lure him to fly to her, with lots of yummy bugs. It should be fine, and left alone.

But, there are times, especially after a storm, when younger chicks have fallen out of the nest. The very best thing to do, is put the chicks back into the nest, or high in a shrub or tree close

Most birds do not have a great sense of smell. Mom will not care that you have handled the chicks for a short time. She will still care for them.

If the chick is hurt, or the mother has been killed or injured, call the New England wildlife center, and they can further assist you. They can be reached at 1-781-682-was honored and proud to have Dunkin' Brands CEO and President of Dunkin' U.S. Dave Hoffmann, as the keynote speaker as its Annual Meeting on Tuesday March 26th. He told Chamber members and guests about the work that has gone into growing the company from its humble beginnings in Quincy, to a chain of thousands of stores all over the world, and what it takes in 2019 to grow the brand and meet the needs of busy people.

In addition to the Hall of Fame award, the Chamber recognized Dive Technologies, a Quincy-based startup as its second Annual Bruce Wood Grant recipient. The company was founded in 2018 by Quincy native Bill Lebo and his partners Jerry Sgobbo and Sam Russo at the Quincy Center for Innovation. They are developing and will manufacture Autonomous Underwater Vehicles (AUVs) that perform oceanographic survey missions at the bottom of the sea. Both Bill Lebo and Jerry Sgobbo presented their concept to the Pentagon in Washington D.C. earlier in the day and then flew back to Massachusetts, making it to Granite Links just in time for the award presentation.

"Quincy has a rich history of successful entrepreneurs who have built world-class businesses," said Quincy Chamber of Commerce President and Executive Director Tim Cahill. "Beginning with Thomas A. Watson, the founder of the Fore River Shipyard (and receiver of the world's first telephone call) before the turn of the 19th century to Louis Grossman of L. Grossman & Sons to Howard Johnson of Howard Johnson's to Peter O'Connell of Marina Bay Management to Rob Hale of Granite Telecommunications in the 21st century.

"Quincy is home to the American Dream," Cahill

"It is fitting," Cahill continued, "that one of the biggest dreamers of them all Bill Rosenberg, adds the business he founded to this illustrious group and Dunkin' be named as the first member of the Quincy Chamber Hall of Fame. It is also appropriate that Dive Technologies, the second winner of the Bruce Wood Grant after Purefections Chocolate in 2018, becomes the latest in a line of exciting new start-ups in Quincy."

Cunniff Cycling Coast-To-Coast For Charity

"I have family currently fighting - my mom's dad," Cunniff said. "And fundraising for this, I have come to realize...everyone kind of has personal connections to cancer whether it's friends, family, work - whoever."

Cunniff said he first applied to participate in this year's bike ride last summer and began fundraising for it in September. He has already surpassed his original goal of $6,000.

"Originally my goal was $6,000. Recently I've passed that so at this point the sky is the limit," he said. "I'll just do as much as I can."

He recently held a fundraiser at the Chantey in Marina Bay. Cunniff said the support he received that night was unbelievable.

"I had a fundraiser the last week in February out in Marina Bay in the Chantey," he said. "That was super-duper successful. It's unbelievable how much people came out to support it. I think that day raised like $2,500 towards it. It was unbelievable."

Cunniff plans to organize additional fundraisers this spring. Donations can also be made online at ulman.z2systems.com/danny-

To prepare for the coastto-coast ride, Cunniff stayed active during the winter months.

"I like to get out on my bike as much as I can, but with snow impacting that a little bit, [I'm] just trying to stay active as much as I can whether it's swimming, going to the gym," he said. "Staying active is really the main point of it."

Training outdoors in the winter will also help prepare him for biking across the Rocky Mountains.

"That's something I've definitely had in mind more definitely trying to get out as much as I can so I can sort of train for the cold. Even in the summer it can get into the low 30s or 20s in the mountains in July," Cunniff

With spring starting, Cunniff began riding outside several times a week. Those training days included 30-mile rides; he hoped to get a 100-mile ride in before leaving for Baltimore.

During the 10-week trek, Cunniff and his fellow bikers will ride up to 120 miles each day. Other days will have shorter rides with other activities mixed in.

"The number that I've heard is between 60 and 120. There will be days when you just wake up and hop on the bike and go basically all day," Cunniff said. "Then there are other days where it will be a lighter day with 60 or 70 and then it's more of a mission trip at that point, because those will be days with helping out at a service center. We'll be doing something other than just going."

Cunniff has been to two of the states he will ride across previously - he drove through Maryland once while he was a student at Westfield State University, and he visited family members in Colorado.

"I drove down to Myrtle Beach in college, so I drove through Maryland a bit and I went to Colorado because I have family that lives out there a couple years back. Other than that, no," he said when asked if he had visited any of the states along the

"It's going to be a great way to see the country, I hope."

Cunniff met a couple of his fellow riders at his February fundraiser. He looks forward to meeting the rest of the group when he travels in Baltimore in late May for orientation.

"That's one of the things in the recent months be- I'm looking forward to a lot, prepare for this summer's cause it's been so cold. I'm just kind of everyone's stories," he said. "I've met a couple at the fundraiser earlier in the winter, but other than that, all strangers."

Cunniff is friends with

Nora Daniels, who completed the same Baltimore to San Francisco ride in 2015. He said she has helped him

"She's a friend of mine who did it. She did the same ride to San Francisco and she's been super helpful and sort of mentoring [me] so far," Cunniff said.

Cunniff said one of the hardest parts of the ride will be getting motivated each day, but he expects the camaraderie with his fellow riders and the support of so many friends, family members and others back home will help fuel him along the

"I'd say probably maybe the motivation piece," he said when asked what the hardest part of the ride would be. "I imagine that working itself out just with the group that I'm with and the group that I'm going to see and knowing all the support I have here and even in each town I'm going to."

"I'm already grateful for all the support that I've gotten around Quincy and from my friends and family," he added. "It's been just an unbelievable amount of support and I really hope that I can do them proud and the people across the country I do get to meet feel that support as well."

"I'M ALREADY GRATEFUL for all the support that I've gotten around Quincy and from my friends and family," says Danny Cunniff who is training to cycle 4,000 miles over 70 days this summer to raise money to support cancer victims and their families. "I really hope that I can do them proud and the people across the country I do get to meet feel that support as well."

On Friday, March 22, at approximately 1:10 p.m., Officers DiMattio, Patten and Sgt. Igo responded to Cushing Street on a call of a male who threatened a Lyft driver with a handgun.

Upon arrival, officers met with the victim (Lyft driver) a block away to safely determine what occurred. Because there was mention and then confirmation that a handgun was involved, Sgt. Dan Flaherty, Officers Matthews and Dougan arrived on scene to assist and surround the house until more details came forth.

Officer DiMattio learned from the victim that he picked up a male passenger and as he transported him to the two family house on Cushing Street, he overheard a telephone conversation between who he believed was the passenger's boyfriend. The victim/driver said he was concerned for his passenger because the boyfriend was extremely angry that he (passenger) was running so late.

As the Lyft vehicle pulled up, a male, later identified as the angry boyfriend, exited a vehicle and immediately began using derogatory language towards the driver, accusing him of having relations with his boyfriend. The driver believed the angry boyfriend thought the passenger was lying to him, not accepting the explanation that traffic was bad. As the passenger exited the Lyft and began to walk down the driveway with the angry boyfriend, the driver exited his car to make sure his passenger was safe.

At this point, with the passenger and boyfriend at the end of the driveway, the boyfriend turned around, focused on the driver and said, "You want to get shot? I'll kill you" as he pulled up his shirt up and brandished what the driver believed was a silver handgun. The distance between the driver and the boyfriend was about 60 feet which enabled the driver to quickly get back to his car, drive off and call "911."

Officer DiMattio updated the sergeants on scene and then with the house surrounded, officers approached the house. After a few knocks on the door, the first floor resident answered the door. He was told of the circumstances and the urgency to identify the alleged gunman. He denied having any knowledge of what happened but allowed the Officers inside to check the apartment. His roommate was also in the apartment.

As officers went to speak to the roommate, he immediately went into the bathroom. The officers requested the roommate come out of the bathroom, which he did but now was only wearing a towel around his waist. At first, he denied being involved in an altercation with a Lyft driver, claiming that he was home all day, then changed his story and admitted to having a verbal altercation with the driver in front of the residence. He denied having a firearm.

As the investigation continued, Officer DiMattio determined the roommate was not the passenger but was lying to cover for the suspect. During this time, thinking it was odd for the roommate to go into the bathroom when officers wanted to talk, Sgt. Flaherty went in and located another male, who turned out to be the passenger. Neither bathroom occupant could provide an explanation why they were in the bathroom together.

For the safety of all involved, the two males were handcuffed while the officers conducted a protective sweep for others inside the apartment. While Sgt. Igo was in the kitchen, a male came up from the basement, claiming he heard the commotion and came upstairs to see what was going on. He was immediately pat frisked for weapons and seated at the dining room table. He said he was sleeping in the basement when he was awoken by all the noise. A protective sweep of the basement yielded negative results for any other individuals.

The male who initially opened the door told the officers the man from the basement is homeless and he allows him to stay in the basement during inclement weather. To the officers, this made no sense since there was no furniture or bed where one could sleep there, just a concrete floor. Warrant checks on the males revealed the passenger and his boyfriend had outstanding default warrants. At this time, the victim/Lyft driver was asked to identify the suspect who brandished the handgun. The three males all stood at the end of the driveway with officers close by.

The victim stood at the beginning of the driveway at the same distance where he initially observed the suspect. The driver/victim positively identified one of the males, the boyfriend, as the suspect who brandished the gun and threatened him. He stated he was "100%" sure. Since there was ample time to hide the handgun prior to the arrival of the Police, the gun was never found. There were several air pistols/paint ball guns in plain view throughout the apartment however none were silver.

The passenger, a 32-year-old Taunton resident, was arrested for the default warrant issued out of Brockton District Court on March 20. The boyfriend, a 25-year-old Boston resident, was charged with assault by means of a dangerous weapon (handgun) and threats to commit a crime (to kill) along with the two default warrants issued out of Boston District Court on Feb. 11.

Interfaith Social Services Stop The Stigma 5K April 27

Event Benefits New Directions Counseling Center

Hundreds of participants will be walking and running in support of friends, family and loved ones affected by mental illness and addiction on Saturday, April 27, at Interfaith Social Services' 45th annual Stop the Stigma 5K. The race starts and ends at the Kennedy Center (Quincy Council on Aging) on East Squantum Street in North Quincy.

The event raises funds for Interfaith's New Directions Counseling Center, and also draws attention to the importance of access to mental healthcare and ending social stigmas attached to mental illness and addiction.

New Directions Counseling Center has been providing compassionate and skilled counseling services to the South Shore since 1947. The counseling program works on an income based sliding fee scale ensuring that anyone who needs care can access it regardless of their ability to pay. Therapists at the Center conducted more than 2,500 counseling sessions last year.

This year, Tom, a New Directions client, will be speaking at the 5K to help kick off the race. Tom has battled addiction for much of his life and has been receiving counseling services from New Directions therapist Anne Donovan. In sharing his story, he hopes to encourage others to seek help and eliminate stigmas surrounding addiction.

For 13 years, Donovan has been helping clients like Tom cope with addiction and recovery at Interfaith. With addiction, she believes everyone has a way out if help is available. "There is no shame with addiction; the shame is not doing anything about it," Donovan said.

Donovan and other New Directions therapists will be at the 5K, providing information about the Counseling Center and supporting those running and walking.

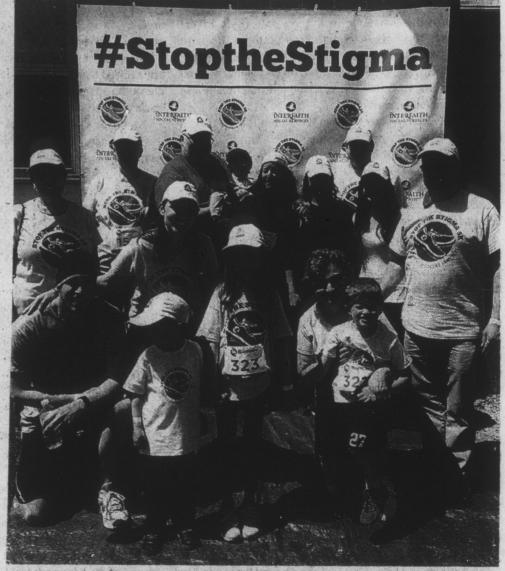

Registration for the Stop the Stigma 5K is now open. Participants who register by April 12 will receive a T-shirt with an option to upgrade to a dry-fit performance shirt. The race is professionally timed by Race-Wire and each participant receives a numbered bib and finish photo.

While a Homestead provides important protections for homeowners, it is important to note there are certain debts that are exempted from protection under the Homestead Act. These include federal, state and local tax liens, as well as mortgages contracted for the purchase of a primary home and nursing home liens. Most other mortgages, debts, and encumbrances existing prior to the filing of the Declaration of Homestead, along with probate court executions for spousal and child support, are also not covered under the Homestead protection them. This survey is the honorable thing to do in order to preserve their final resting place while being reinterred with honor and dignity that they so rightfully deserve," White said.

"Boston has come a long way cleaning up the waters of Boston Harbor and the islands, however, the city of Boston has failed to recognize the dark history of these islands."

Wunnamwau Thomas Frederick, second chief of the Chappaquiddic Tribe of the Massachusetts Wampanoag Nation, said it was his ancestors who died on Long Island.

"These bones have names. I can only think about the sadness and pain that many of the family members experienced on the island - elderly, women, children," Frederick said. "I ask you to impart the same compassion and grace that was granted to your ancestors as they were laid to rest in well-maintained, manicured, hallowed grounds."

Mark Peters, the historian for the Munsee Delaware Nation, said all efforts must be made to preserve remaining burial grounds.

"Over the centuries, the progress of civilization has resulted in the obliteration of our sacred sites and burial grounds," Peters wrote in a letter to the committee. "Where such sites still exist, we must make all efforts to preserve and memorialize them."

Harris said he plans to introduce three new resolutions related to the harbor islands when the council convenes again on April 22.

"I'm not going to talk about a bridge. I'm not going to talk about a city to the north of us," Harris said. "I am going to talk about my next step with you folks."

The first resolution, addressed to the city's congressional delegation, asks the National Park Service to work with the Native American groups to preserve burial sites on the islands. The second asks state prosecutors to determine if

Event Benefits New Directions Counseling Center

Hundreds of participants will be walking and running in support of friends, family and loved ones affected by mental illness and addiction on Saturday, April 27, at Interfaith Social Services' 45th annual Stop the Stigma 5K. The race starts and ends at the Kennedy Center (Quincy Council on Aging) on East Squantum Street in North Quincy.

The event raises funds for Interfaith's New Directions Counseling Center, and also draws attention to the importance of access to mental healthcare and ending social stigmas attached to mental illness and addiction.

New Directions Counseling Center has been providing compassionate and skilled counseling services to the South Shore since 1947. The counseling program works on an income based sliding fee scale ensuring that anyone who needs care can access it regardless of their ability to pay. Therapists at the Center conducted more than 2,500 counseling sessions last year.

This year, Tom, a New Directions client, will be speaking at the 5K to help kick off the race. Tom has battled addiction for much of his life and has been receiving counseling services from New Directions therapist Anne Donovan. In

Church Of The Presidents Guided Tours Begin April 13

The Church of the Presidents announces the opening of the 2019 History and Visitors program season on Saturday, April 13th.

The History and Visitors Program offers guided tours of the historic United First Parish Church and the crypt of the Adams Presidents Monday through Saturday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sundays noon to 4 p.m.

United First Parish Church sits in the heart of historic Quincy Center, directly across from the old City Hall (James R. Mc-Intyre Government Center) and the Hancock Cemetery. Completed in 1828, this historic church is the fourth home to the first and longest continuously functioning congregation in the community.

The building was designed by Alexander Parris, and is constructed with Quincy granite, much it donated from the Adams family quarry. The building was designated as a National Historic Landmark in 1970 and is considered one of the finest examples a Greek Revival style church in New England.

The Church of the Presidents is the only building in the United States to house the final resting place of two Presidents. President John Adams, First Lady Abigail Adams, their son President John Quincy Adams and Louisa Catherine Adams are interred in the family crypt underneath the front entrance to the building.

For more information about the History and Visitors Program tours or about volunteering as a tour guide with the program, contact Bob Damon at 617.773.0062 or email at visitorsprogram@ufpc.org.

Quincy's Chris Traietta On Hampton Boxing Card April 12

Former New England welterweight champion Derek "The Surgeon" Silveira has a new opponent for his April 12th main event fight for the vacant N.E. welterweight title on a stacked "Riot at The Rim" card, presented by Granite Chin Promotions (GSP), at The Rim in Hampton, N.H.

Silveira (15-2, 8 KOs), fighting out of Salem, will now take on 19-year-old Roberto "Viejo" Valenzuela, Jr, (14-0, 13 KOs), who has replaced injured Travis "The Outlaw" Demko (8-1, 1 KO), of Stoughton, in the scheduled eight-round head-liner

"Losing Travis was tough blow but the determination to put on a jampacked card didn't waiver," GCP promoter Chris Traietti said. "Derek's camp was ready for a step-up fight and, quite frankly, Granite Chin was ready to make a statement in 2019. After a few days with the phone glued to my ear, Roberto Valenzuela Jr stepped up and took the fight. He's bringing a great record at 14-0 to the table and Derek didn't even flinch at the offer."

The Quincy, MA- based Traietti (27-4, 21 KOs), an Iraq War veteran and college graduate, is also fighting on the "Riot at The Rim" card in the 10-round co-featured event The reigning New England cruiser-weight champion, Traietti faces Gilberto "El Magico" Matheus Domingos (22-10, 20 KOs), a former Brazilian light heavyweight champion, for the vacant World Boxing Council (WBC) FECARBOX cruiserweight title.

WBC Latino cruiserweight champion Vinnie "American Nightmare" Carita (19-1-1, 18 KOs), a court officer in Brockton who lives in Pembroke, faces Brazilian fighter Claudio "Quexado" Morroni (8-4-1, 7 KOs) in an eight-round bout for the vacant ABF Colonial Atlantic Cruiserweight Championship.

In another 8-round fight, undefeated New Haven, CT featherweight prospect Tramaine "The Mighty Midget" Williams (16-0, 6 KOs), promoted by Roc Nation Sports, is a former 10-time national amateur champion who will be fighting veteran Ernesto "Monito" Guerrero (31-26, 21 KOs), of Mexico.

Undefeated welterweight prospect Omar Bordoy (7-0, 2 KOs), of Danbury, CT, meets Frenchman Roman Tomas (7-2, 1 KO), now living in Brooklyn, NY, in a six-round match.

Undefeated Providence welterweight prospect Anthony "A1" Marsella (11-0, 5 KOs), the 24-year-old International Boxing Association (IBA) champion who is handled by Mayweather Promotions, squares off against Engleberto "Guarura" Valenzuela (11-15, 3 KOs), of Mexico., in a six-rounder

Gloucester middleweight "Handsome" Henry Gedney (2-0, 1 KO) throws-down with New Jersey's Darryl "Dreamking" Bunting (3-5-2, 1 KO) in a four-rounder.

Also fighting on the undercard is Lynn welter-weight Khiry "TNT" Todd (7-1, 5 KOs) against Francisco "El Mono" Medal (12-16, 8 KOs), in a six-round bout.

All fights and fighters are subject to change. Ticket prices are $60, $45 and $35 and available to purchase online at www.TicketRiver. com (search word: Riot at the Rim).

OBITUARIES

John G. Brosnan

A funeral Mass for John G. Brosnan of Quincy, originally of Co. Kerry, Ireland, was celebrated March 30 in St. Brendan's Church, Dorchester.

Mr. Brosnan died March 22.

He adored his beloved partner Bill and his family in Boston and Ireland. He loved nothing more than to visit his family in Ireland, often as part of his European vacations with his loving partner Bill.

Mr. Brosnan was a true artist with an amazing eye for color and detail, which led him to a very successful career at Mario Russo Salon in Boston for over 20 years where he was known as "John B" to all of his colleagues and clients.

Mr. Brosnan enjoyed creating and caring for his beautiful garden. He loved the latest fashion trends and dining out with his many friends. He was generous to a fault, kind, outgoing, cheerful and charismatic and always full of energy and time for others. He had a wide circle of friends and will be greatly missed by all who knew and loved him.

Beloved partner of 23 years to Bill (William) Lyons of Quincy Loving son of Terence and Frances (McLaughlin). Brosnan of Ireland. Cherished brother of Frances & John Griffin (Ireland), Breda & John Fealy (Dorchester), Grace & Tim O'Connor (Ireland), Terry Brosnan and Linda Johnson (Brockton), George & Betty Brosnan (Ireland), Mary & Joseph Shanahan (Ireland), Martin Brosnan(Ireland), James Brosnan & Emma Hickey (Ireland). Cherished Brother in law of Ken, Bob, Rosemary, Rick, Patricia, and Arlene. Loving uncle to his many nephews, nieces, grand-nephew & grandniece. Much loved nephew to his many aunts and uncles and extended family.

JOHN G. BROSNAN

May he rest in eternal peace. Ar dheis Dé go raibh a anam.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Joan F. Gillespie, 90

A memorial service for Joan Frances (Shultz) Gillespie, 90, a longtime resident of Quincy, will be held April 27 at 11 a.m. in St. John the Evangelist Church, Duxbury.

Mrs. Gillespie died peacefully after a brief illness on March 25.

She is survived by her devoted children, James Gillespie, Jr. and his wife Virginia, Scott Gillespie and his wife Ann, Rance Gillespie and his wife Deidre, and daughter Dawne Marshall and her husband Robert. She is predeceased by her loving husband, James Gillespie, Sr. of 59 years, her children David Gillespie, Gayle Martin, and Joann Rootsey. She was daughter of the late Edward and Alice (Smith) Schultz. She leaves behind a large and loving family of 18 grandchildren, 6 great-grandchildren, her brother Charles Schultz and his wife Nancy, her brotherin-law Rance Gillespie and his wife Susan, her sisterin-law Andrea Gillespie and her son-in-law Rick Rootsey and many nieces and nephews, who all had significant roles in her life.

Mrs. Gillespie grew up in Quincy and attended the Woodard School for Girls. She raised her seven children in Quincy, at Quarterdeck Rd., Germantown and Clive St., North Quincy for 34 years before snow birding between Rangeley, ME and Barefoot Bay, FL.

Mrs. Gillespie was a registered nurse at Quincy City Hospital for 30+ years, having attended the Quincy City Hospital School of Nursing. She worked in the new-born nursery, caring for several generations of babies during the 1950s through the 1980s.

She was fond of traveling with her husband and children. She was an outdoor enthusiast who loved snowmobiling, cross country skiing, boating and gardening. She was an active member and a Eucharistic minister at St. Chrysostom's in Wollaston for many years. She was an outstanding seamstress and also loved to knit and crochet. Mrs. Gillespie found her calling in the 1990s when she became a member of the Steppingstone Quilters of Sebastian, FL, which was a fun and charitable organization donating baby quilts for newborns and Quilts of Valor for returning soldiers. Mrs. Gillespie also made many quilts and other quilt projects for her loved ones which will always be trea-

Please bring your quilts to the memorial service; she would absolutely love that.

Memorial donations may be made to Church of the Good Shepherd, PO Box 156, Rangeley, ME 04970.

Funeral arrangements were made by MacDonald Funeral Home, Marshfield.

Gail P. Riordan, 76

A funeral Mass for Gail P. (Bousquet) Riordan, age 76, of Quincy was celebrated March 30 in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Riordan died peacefully at home on March 24.

She was the beloved wife of Thomas W. Riordan of Quincy; sister of Warren Bousquet and his wife Felicia of Columbus, OH, Lynn Swanson and her husband Stanley of CT, and the late Craig Bousquet and his surviving wife Rosa of CT. Also survived by many loving nieces and nephews and devoted friends.

Born in Fairfield, CT, she was the daughter of the late Lionel Bousquet and Linnea (Carlson). Mrs. Riordan worked for many years as a legal secretary and was later employed by the Union Pacific Railroad. She was a longtime member of St.
Ann's Church in Quincy. In her free time, Mrs. Riordan and her husband Tom en-

Louise Kapples, 88

A funeral Mass for Louise (Mealey) Kapples, age 88, of Hingham, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated March 29 in St. Mary's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Kapples died peacefully March 24 at Linden Ponds, after a brief illness.

She was born in Boston on April 19, 1930, to the late John M. and Louisa (O'Neil) Mealey. She grew up in Brookline, attended St. Mary's Catholic School and Brookline High School, and was a part-time organist for St. Mary's Catholic Church during her high school and college years.

college years. Mrs. Kapples graduated from the former Framingham State Teachers College (now Framingham State University) and received a Master of Education from Boston College. She was an elementary school teacher and fourth grade was her favorite. In 1958, she married the love of her life, John Walsh Kapples, who predeceased her on Aug. 29, 2018. Mrs. Kapples lived in Hingham for the last twenty-three years and previously in Quincy upon marriage.

She was an intelligent, hard-working, kind and loving wife and mother. Her college yearbook described her as "poised, proficient and imperturbable." She was devoted to caring for her husband, John, and supporting her sons and grandchildren in any way she could. Her family was her highest priority. She was a deeply faithful Rothe department, Koch said, ranging from CPR and firstaid courses for the public to safety training for licensed food establishments and tattoo artists to emergency planning for potential incidents such as influenza out-

A registered nurse for more than 40 years, Jones started her career at the former Quincy City Hospital, moving on to coordinate nursing in medical offices in the city and teaching at Southeastern Regional Vocational School before joining the Health Department. She has contributed to writing and presenting public health training modules for the Boston University School of Public Health, and was a peer reviewer for public health regulations for the Middle East nation of Dubai through Harvard Medical School International.

Jones holds a master's degree in public health from Southern New Hampshire University.

"Ruth is an immensely talented and qualified public health administrator, and I am truly thrilled to have her leading our Public Health Department," Koch said in a statement, "She cares deeply about this community and its people, and that. is an attribute that does not show up on a resume, but it is absolutely vital for public service."

Jones on Tuesday said she was thrilled to lead the department.

"I'm thrilled I have an opportunity to work in this position," she said in a phone interview. "I have worked in public health for 19 years and I am thrilled with the opportunity to progress on and do different things."

Scheele started with the city as a health inspector focused enforcing safety codes at local food establishments and was promoted to health commissioner by then Mayor William Phelan in 2002. Koch said Scheele oversaw a number of initiatives during his time with the department, including regulations for tattoo artists and massage parlors and spearheading the city's rodent control efforts.

"I am incredibly grateful for Commissioner Scheele's service to the city of Quincy for more than 20 years," Koch said. "His work was instrumental in helping modernize the department and keeping our Health Department at the forefront of innovation and accessibility to the public. He will be missed, but we wish him well as he moves on to his next chapter."

Jones said the Health Department is responsible for a number of initiatives in the

The nursing program, she said, is tasked with investigating communicable diseases, licenses and inspects camps operating in the city, and helps educate the public.

The department is also tasked with inspecting more than 500 food establishments in the city, including both routine visits and responses to complaints from the public.

In addition, the department's inspectors respond to complaints from tenants about unsanitary living conditions. The department also reviews proposed new construction projects and plans to demolish existing buildings.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the up-per left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Professional relationships grow stronger. But you might still need to ease some problems with someone in your personal life. One way could be to try to be less rigid in your views.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You might be too close to that perplexing personal situation to even attempt to make a rational decision about it right now. Stepping back could help you gain a wider perspective.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Being asked to choose between the positions of two friends is an unfair imposition on you. It's best to reject the "demands" and insist they try harder to work things out on their own.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A change of mind about a workplace decision might be called for once you hear more arguments, pro and con. A personal event suddenly takes an unexpected (but pleasant!) turn.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Romance once again looms large for single Leos and Leonas, with Cupid favoring Taurus and Libra to inspire those warm and fuzzy Leonine feelings. Expect another workplace change.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A surprise gift and, happily, with no strings attached -- could come just when you need it to avoid a delay in getting your project done. Expect education to dominate the week.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Someone close to you might ask for your support as she or he faces a Synd., Inc.

demanding personal challenge. Offer it, by all means. But be careful you don't neglect your own needs at this time.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An unexpected development could put your relationship with a partner or spouse to an emotionally demanding test. But your determination to get to the truth should save the day. SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A recent agreement appears to be coming apart over the surfacing of unexpected complications. You might need to have expert advice on how to resolve the situation.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your keen business sense helps you get to the truth about a suspicious business deal. Expect to have many colleagues rally to support your efforts in this important matter.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Someone who once moved in and out of your life through the years might now want to come back in on a more permanent basis. Give yourself a lot of time to weigh your decision. PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Showing frustration over a delayed workplace decision might get someone's attention, but not necessarily make him or her move any sooner. Best advice would be to be patient and wait it out. BORN THIS WEEK: You are drawn to excitement and enjoy fast-tempo music, with the more brass, the better.

a 59-year-old Rock Hudson was the first major movie star to die from AIDS, and his passing finally brought attention to the HIV disease. Rock starred in more than 60 major films, including "Magnificent Obsession" (1954); "All That Heaven Allows" (1955); "Giant" (1956), his only Oscar nomination; and "Pillow Talk" (1959), with Doris Day. It was while filming "Dynasty" (1984-85) that people realized he was deathly ill. Given the choice of filming "Dynasty" or going to France for treatment that could prolong his life, Rock chose "Dynasty." By the time he finally went to France, the disease had progressed beyond the point where the treatment could save him.

He began his career in 1949 at Universal Pictures playing indians and pirates, so it's only fitting that Universal will tell the story of his life and death in the upcoming "All That Heaven Allows," based on Mark Griffin's book of the same name. Marc Christian, one of Rock's past lovers, sued him and won a multimillion-dollar lawsuit because Rock didn't tell him he had AIDS. I met Rock through his mother, who was a friend of a friend, and he always treated me as a friend. At the beginning of his career, he hid his homosexuality, and at the end of his career, he hid his AIDS.

The second lawsuit, for $30 million, is against his former business managers for malpractice, Insiders allege these problems have soured his chances to do the reboot of "The Pirates of the Caribbean," but that seems unlikely, since he was a key component in the original films.

The two men who allege in the documentary "Leaving Neverland" that they were sexually assaulted as kids by Michael Jackson have prompted the producers of the Michael Jackson musical "Don't Stop 'Til You Get Enough" to cancel their Broadway tryout. Reworked Filing Cabinet -- Decorating has once again become informal, like the "country furniture" era in the 1980s that led to rooms with "nonfurniture furniture." An old cobbler's bench became a coffee table, a cranberry scoop was a magazine rack, stacked orange crates were shelving and tin Grape Nuts signs were hung as art. A new "technology" style began about six years ago. A refinished workbench with a polished vice or gears is a dining table, and a church bench replaces three or four chairs. Refinished oak filing cabinets from an office or library provide storage for jewelry or folded shirts, and wall-to-wall carpeting is out, replaced by polished wood floors.

The result is unique and childproof since the pieces. have survived bumps and spills already. And the clever buyer can find solid wooden pieces for bargain prices. An Ohmer's Sons office filing cabinet with 48 drawers and the original brass' hardware was auctioned in Maine for $1,331. It was made in Ohio before 1898, when Edwin Seibels tried to patent a way to file a flat letter in a lateral file folder instead of stacking mail inside its envelope in a drawer. Reworked factory and office furniture of the past has become more popular for the living room, and it is going up in price. There are even reproductions available. ***

Q: I have a piece of Niloak pottery, which has some stains that look like drips, possibly from furniture polish. Is there a way to clean this?

A: Niloak Pottery was made at the Hyten Brothers Pottery in Benton, Arkansas, from 1910 to 1918, and again from 1921 to 1947. The pottery was made from Kaolin, a soft, white clay. The name "Niloak" is "kaolin" spelled backward. To clean Niloak pottery, use a soft cloth dampened with water. If the drips are furniture polish, they may be hard to remove since the polish probably contains oil, wax or another waterresistant ingredient. Some people recommend using a mild solution of water and dish detergent. Don't soak the pottery, avoid rubbing the surface too hard and be sure to blot it dry.

Historic John Quincy Tankard On Permanent Display

purchased the tankard for nearly $200,000, including commission paid to the auction house. Burke has lent the item to the city and said he would leave it to the city in his will.

Burke welcomed having the tankard on display for the public to see.

"It means everything to me because I love this city. I give hundreds of thousands of dollars to this city and I do it because of the love I have," he said.

Koch said it was important to have the tankard on display, calling it the centerpiece of the exhibition space, because it is the only known item with any association to Col. John Quincy.

"This is huge," the mayor said. "That really is probably the biggest focus of the museum when you talk about Quincy and how it was named.

"There is no picture of Col. John Quincy – no portrait of Col. John Quincy. There is no physical birth-place or anything that connects us to him, except for this tankard, so it really helps to tell the whole story."

Burke said he was inspired to purchase the tankard at the 2001 auction after reading a story on the looming sale by Henry Bosworth, Jr., the late Quincy Sun publisher.

"It told how 13 pieces of colonial silver were for sale by the church due to the fact they have to repair their roof. This is what Henry says, 'he's hoping that some citizen in Quincy might come forward and buy some of the silver," Burke recalled. "I said, 'Henry, you're pointing that right at me,' when I read it."

Burke still remembers the auction to this day.

"I called Sotheby's down in New York and I bid on a couple pieces of silver and the prices went out of sight," he stated. "So I said, 'the John Quincy tankard is coming up. Promise yourself...you won't drop out of the bidding.'

"It's a good thing I promised myself, because when it got over $100,000, I started sweating beads and when it got close to $200,000, I was dying of exhaustion."

Burke kept the tankard at his house after purchasing it at the auction and it was previously put on periodic display. It is now on display inside a permanent case with appropriate security measures.

Burke has made a number of donations to various groups in Quincy over the years. That includes nearly 200 scholarships to graduates of the city's high schools who attend the University of Massachusetts, where Burke starred on the basketball team before playing for the Boston Celtics, and $100,000 for the weight room at Quincy High School. Burke said the mayor's father, the late Richard Koch, inspired him to give back.

"His father helped me learn to do what I do. His father was the greatest charitable giver in this city," Burke said of the mayor. "I told [the mayor] coming in I could never figure out why his father and mother did so much good in this city. The Koch Club was a major part of my life growing up and I owe to his father a lot of my success."

The silver tankard is one of a number of items on

The tankard is the only known object connected to Col. Quincy, for whom the city of Quincy and John Quincy Adams, his great-grandson, were both named.

GEORGE BURKE (left) and Mayor Thomas Koch shook hands March 27 after the mayor announced the Col. John Quincy tankard would be on permanent display. Burke purchased the 1767 tankard at a 2001 auction and has lent it to the city and will leave it to the city in his will. "It means everything to me because I love this city," said Burke.
